Chrysanthemum Festival

On View

October 1–November 13

Vibrancy and imagination abound during our spectacular Chrysanthemum Festival. We stretch our horticultural limits by nurturing and training specialty chrysanthemum forms, all bursting with color from start to finish, making for a radiant Conservatory bursting with personality.

Outside, explore our painted vistas as they change with the season, enjoy family fun in our fanciful Garden Railway, and find autumnal awe at every turn.

Final Weeks to Light Up Your Night

Light: Installations by Bruce Munro

On View Thursday–Sunday Evenings through October 30

---

The magic of Light: Installations by Bruce Munro will soon come to a close. Experience Light again—or for the first time—and find a landscape aglow with 18,000 lights ... flamingoes wading amid changing hues ... a stunning immersive environment inspired by our water gardens ... and so much more.

Light Night:
Wondrous Water
October 14
5–8 pm

Join us for our final Light Night, a fantastically fun themed night with live music, fountain performances, family activities, and more—all inspired by Light.

Lawn seating is available throughout the Main Fountain Garden. Bench seating is available but limited on the perimeter paths of the Main Fountain Garden. Guests may bring personal blankets and chairs to view the performance, and may set them up anywhere within the designated lawn viewing areas after 12 pm.

Plus, enjoy the final days of our Beer Garden season with live music, tasty fare, and refreshing brews. View our fountain performance and live music lineup at longwoodgardens.org.

Highlights from Our Gardens

With Flying Colors

Every year, we stretch our horticultural limits with our Chrysanthemum Festival, a colorful celebration of the quintessential autumnal flower, and the largest and oldest chrysanthemum display in North America—and this year is no exception. With this year's Chrysanthemum Festival, we're tickled pink (and orange, and red, and so on) that our chrysanthemums will boast vibrant color from the start to the end of the season. While you'll still see some green as our mums come into peak bloom, you'll also notice that vibrancy abounds this season more than ever before—all thanks to the display capabilities made possible by our newest nursery production greenhouse.

Opened in December 2020, this groundbreaking facility—consisting of a 15,600-square-foot headhouse and 65,348-square-foot greenhouse—accommodates a variety of plant materials, growing methods, and environments ... which in turn allows us to grow a variety of plants more precisely and with less resource input.

With 17 distinct growing zones, the vast majority of our greenhouse is dedicated to custom-growing plants for our seasonal displays and enables us to now grow our cascade chrysanthemums—the hallmark of our Chrysanthemum Festival—indoors. By growing these specialty chrysanthemums indoors, we are able to protect them from undesirable outdoor heat, humidity, and moisture levels, as well as use precise technology in order to control light levels, temperature, and moisture levels ... which all allows us to further elevate our cascade chrysanthemum artistry and display capabilities.

With this technology at hand, for this year's display we were able to not only nurture and create a variety of specialty chrysanthemum forms—from eye-catching spirals to dreamy clouds to soaring baskets—but we were also able to force more chrysanthemums to flower earlier than we ever have before. The result is stunning, lush color you'll enjoy throughout the entire Chrysanthemum Festival season.

Welcoming Our New Director of Conservatories and Horticulture Design

In June we welcomed our new Director of Conservatories and Horticulture Design Chad Davis to our Gardens. A creative and respected horticulturist with a unique set of skills in conservatory management and design, Davis comes to Longwood from Gardens by the Bay in Singapore, where he oversaw all horticultural aspects of the conservatories from site preparation and initial planting, as well as the care of a diverse collection of Mediterranean, desert, and tropical montane forest plants.

Here at Longwood, Davis will ensure we continue to create extraordinary horticultural displays for our guests while helping to elevate and drive innovation and creativity. “Longwood has a reputation for its extraordinary horticulture and standard of excellence,” shares Davis. “I am eager to hit the ground running alongside Longwood’s talented team to further elevate and amplify the dynamic displays.”

Longwood Reimagined:* The Project Progresses

We have reached several notable milestones in recent months as our garden expansion continues to take shape and make incredible progress.

In June, we lifted the first section of steel—weighing in at around 11,000 pounds and measuring 47 feet tall—for the West Conservatory (above). This section is one of the 13 frames (or rows of columns and beams) that will form the structure of the West Conservatory.

In late July, we embarked on the precast facade panel installation for the new Restaurant and Event Space, which totals more than 50 precast panels, each weighing in at 15,000 pounds. The center panel includes a replica of the datestone from the original Conservatory construction.

As always, we'll keep you updated on our Longwood Reimagined progress and continue to share the many facets of this incredibly detailed project as it unfolds. You can watch as the project progresses at longwoodgardens.org/beauty-making, as well as sign up for project updates at longwoodgardens.org/longwood-reimagined.

Follow the Fellows: Journey Along with Our Fifth Fellows Cohort

The six talented professionals selected for the 2022–23 Fellows Program cohort have begun their Fellows experience, and we're so glad to welcome them to our Gardens. Now embarking on our immersive residential program that develops global leaders in the field of public horticulture, our fifth Fellows Cohort includes Danny Cox from Naples Botanical Garden in Naples, FL; Ryan Gott, Ph.D., from Pittsburgh, PA; Amanda Hannah from the Seattle Parks Department at the Washington Park Arboretum in Seattle, WA; Rama Lopez-Rivera from the Royal Botanic Garden Edinburgh (Scotland); Anamari (Ana) Mena from Orlando, FL; and Rae Vassar from the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society in Philadelphia, PA.

Throughout their experience, the Fellows will develop and refine their leadership skills, become immersed in the culture of Longwood and other regional public horticulture organizations, participate in a mentoring program, complete coursework, and fulfill a two-month field placement at a domestic or international garden ... all while working collectively on a single project that spans the duration of the program. We invite you to experience their 13-month journey along with them. Look for updates and findings from our Fellows at longwoodgardens.org/follow-the-fellows and join their journey at #followthefellows on Twitter.

Join us as we welcome our new Director of Continuing Education Timothy Gould. With a background in program management, public education, and outreach, and serving most recently as the Director of Public Programs at The Arboretum at Penn State, Gould grew up in Chester County and still has his "frequent visitor" pass from when he was 10 years of age. "I have always had incredible respect for Longwood," shares Gould. "I'm excited to carry the legacy of Continuing Education forward."

A Longwood Christmas

On View November 18, 2022–January 8, 2023

This holiday season, celebrate botanical splendor in all its forms as we showcase the beauty and bounty of the natural world. Stroll amid floating floral designs, marvel at festive trees dressed in gilded garland to bold poinsettia, and step into an extravagant floral shop complete with an exquisite window display.

Outside, gaze upon botanically inspired light displays, explore enchanting treehouses, and find new features that are sure to delight.

'Tis the season for splendor.

Visiting as a Member or Innovator?

Member Reservations Required Daily

Members may visit anytime, but require free timed Member reservations every day during A Longwood Christmas from open to close. Member reservations should be made in advance as sell out is likely. Gardens Premium Members and those included in their Membership, as well as Innovators, do not require timed reservations.

With a timed Member reservation, you may enter the Gardens as early as a half-hour before (except for 10 am ticketholders) or as late as a half-hour after your entry time. Later or earlier arrivals cannot be accommodated. You may stay as long as you wish once you enter the Gardens. Once you leave the Gardens, there is no re-entry, so please make sure you have everything you need before you enter.

Member Guests & General Admission

Buy Before You Arrive • Timed Tickets Required • Tickets Limited

Admission to A Longwood Christmas is by Timed Admission Ticket with tickets issued for a specific date and time. Guests not included in a Membership require a Timed Admission Ticket. We cannot accommodate a Member's request for tickets if we are sold out. Purchase in advance as tickets do sell out.

Using Complimentary Guest Tickets?

Complimentary Guest Tickets are not valid on blackout days during A Longwood Christmas. Blackout days are all Fridays, Saturdays, and Sundays during A Longwood Christmas through January 1, 2023 and every day December 23, 2022 through January 1, 2023. Timed Admission Tickets or Member reservations are not needed with Complimentary Guest Tickets.

Check your tickets as restrictions may apply.
